

Jeff Capri – Biography

Jeff Capri is one of the top second-generation comics working today. The only comic to be described as "energetically laid back" Capri is sort of a comedy chameleon. While observational or physical, he's been known to pop in silly biographical-political twists, sparkling takes on pop-culture, and his puns are always intended. Jeff's comedic palette takes a different direction than his father's classic Catskill style, yet those timeless comic sensibilities and timing, are embedded in Jeff's DNA.

Since 1999 Jeff has been sharing his comedic flair touring abroad, bringing laughter to the United States Military. Jeff's annual touring camaraderie with USO and Armed Forces Entertainment has taking him everywhere from Micronesia to Afghanistan. Jeff also stars the acclaimed comedy documentary "I Am Battle Comic." about entertaining U.S. troops in the Middle East. (Available on Amazon Prime & iTunes)

Jeff's continuing appearances at comedy clubs, cruise lines and corporate events, have sharpened his improvisational ability enabling him to adapt to almost any crowd. He has even preformed at a nudist colony. (Fully clothed!)

Jeff's ability, not precedence, to work clean while keeping a silly, cynical edge is what makes this comedian shine. Some of Jeff's television appearances include Comics Unleashed, Last Comic Standing and Ed McMahon's Next Big Star. During quarantine 2020, Jeff released his Dry Bar Comedy Special: "Capricious." The well-received special has procured his social media presence with thousands of "clicks & views" raising daily.

Jeff's ongoing comedy trek has enabled him to work alongside many respected entertainers, including Ellen DeGeneres, Joy Behar, and Bill Burr.
